Pontin's Holiday Park	Hemsby, United Kingdom	NR29 4HT	With the changing fortunes of the Norfolk coast as a destination spot, this holiday park closed down in 2009 due to rising overheads and cheap flights abroad. It has pretty much remained untouched and still stands as a testament to the past glories of holidaying in Norfolk and the realities of capitalism's effect on rural areas. It would be amazing to see parts of this reanimated by artists and the local community.
The Chapel of St Peter-On-The-Wall	Bradwell-on-Sea, United Kingdom	CM0 7PN	"We've nominated one of the oldest intact Christian churches in England. It is the 19th oldest building in the country, dating back to around AD 660-662. Today it is located next to Christian commune, the Othona community. Structurally, the nave remains, with foundations of an apse and flanking chapels. Until 1920 the chapel was used as a barn, but it was then restored and re-consecrated. It is now Grade I listed. It is largely composed of re-used Roman stone, and the remaining building is distinctive for the height of its walls."
Tesco site	Chatteris, United Kingdom	PE16 6TG	Tesco decided not to open this store in Chatteris after it had nearly finished being built in 2016. The plot lays empty and unused just off the main street in the village, but is a fantastic scope and size to be brought back to life.
Petrified Forest Mundon	Mundon, United Kingdom	CM9 6PA	The rural landscape of the East of England is one of expansive skies and flat plains. The horizon feels like a definite line and out of it, near the village of Mundon, loom these incredible trees that look like they have been inverted; with the roots where the branches and leaves should be. It's a disconcerting sight. Very sculptural but also very melancholic especially on a summers day when the fact that they are long-dead seems even more striking. This forest of great oaks have become frozen; in their location and in time.
Cherry Hinton Chalk Pits	Fulbourn Rd, Cambridge, United Kingdom	CB1 9JL	Owned by the Wildlife Trust and now a local geological site, this chalk pit was worked up until the 1980s. It provided much of the stonework for buildings around Cambridge since the 1400s and still provides spring water to the area today. "These chalk pits blew my mind when I first visited them. They are located just outside the city centre yet so few people know about them. The barren, bleached landscape is wonderful for exploring and seems a world away from the Cambridge we associate with punting and Kings College Chapel."
Concrete Pyramid	55 S Beach Parade, Great Yarmouth NR30 3JP, UK	NR30 3PX	"This is an amazing site that feels like it's at the edge of the world. The concrete pyramid is situated close to massive maritime endeavours and signifiers of power - Great Yarmouth's outer harbour and the offshore wind farm that it serves, as well as Nelson's Monument. It was something to do with the former coal power station that stood nearby but now it stands in the sea as a brutalist concrete sculpture for cormorants to dry their wings and brave swimmers to venture out to."
Saxmundham station	Station Approach, Saxmundham, United Kingdom	IP17 1BW	"Gateway to community and landscape in coastal suffolk. Saxmundham welcomes ideas and excited about possible change."
Fiscal Policy wood	Lover's Lane, Leiston, Suffolk, United Kingdom	IP16	"Bizarrely named piece of forgotten woodland near proposed Sizewell C Nuclear Power Station. OS have been unable to determine when it was named. It feels as if this location must have some strange deep significance"
The Art Station	Railway Station, Saxmundham, United Kingdom	IP17 1BW	"New and exciting place to exhibit and discuss art in all its genres"

Cherry Hinton Chalk Pits	Fulbourn Road, Cambridge, United Kingdom	CB1 9JL	"This is a magical place for my children because their childminder lives nearby and they regularly visit the chalk pits as part of their morning walks. For them it is sometimes the surface of the moon, at other times a beach, or a wild prairie. They regularly return home with their pockets full of chalk, which they then use to draw pictures on our patio, later to be washed away by the rain. The first time we visited as a family, it was the children who showed us round and led us there. It is a hidden away, strange and intriguing place, and very special to us."
Lowestoft South Pier	Lowestoft, Suffolk, United Kingdom	NR33 0AE	"Many years ago people would promenade here, or go for an evening out to the now demolished ballroom. Now it sits sad and neglected."
The Saxmundham Train Station	Station Approach, Saxmundham, United Kingdom	IP17 1BW	"The Station building is a key asset for the town but has been neglected for many years and unoccupied for the last 5 years. It would make for a great place to display contemporary art and help benefit the local community as well as provide a better first impression for those who leave or impression"
The Saxmundham Train Station	Station Approach, Saxmundham, United Kingdom	IP17 1BW	"The Station building is a key asset for the town but has been neglected for many years and unoccupied for the last 5 years. It would make for a great place to display contemporary art and help benefit the local community as well as provide a better first impression for those who leave or impression"
The Tree	9 Bar Lane, Stapleford, United Kingdom	cb22 5bj	"Community is trying to save this pub from developers"
The Tree Public House	Bar Lane, Stapleford, United Kingdom	CB22 5BJ	"It used to be such a friendly pub. Now it is closed. We need to get it re-opened."
Arlesey	Arlesey, Bedfordshire, United Kingdom	SG15	"Arlesey is a run-down, bleak feeling village, it has a bad reputation locally but has a strong community."
Sogenhoe Anglo-Saxon Chapel	Ufford, United Kingdom	IP13	"Little known but fascinating, The site of Sogenhoe Chapel features a wooden cross in a copse and an interpretation board. Given it's close proximity to Sutton Hoo and Rendlesham (the site of Raedwald's hall), I have always liked to think it's significance was once great and that Ufford, named for the mythic King Uffa, was a site of great meaning for the Anglo-Saxons. It should be better known, not least to protect it from future and proposed developments nearby."
Norwich Road Ipswich	Ipswich, United Kingdom	IP1 2PT	"The upper end of the road is ripe for artists and creative regeneration. Strong international communities, a variety of cultural offers in town."
St Clement Church (a.k.a Ipswich Arts Centre)	Ipswich Arts Centre, Fore St, Ipswich, United Kingdom	IP4 1JZ	"St. Clement Church is one of three medieval flint churches close to the Ipswich Waterfront development, and the last to find a long term re-use. Of the three churches it undoubtedly has the finest setting with a generous graveyard and a number of mature trees. The church is largely C15th and has an exterior of flint with stone quoins. It has a grand tower, perpendicular windows, a clerestory and an 1860's chancel. The church was dedicated to the patron saint of sailormen and has from the beginning had strong connections with the seafaring community. The anchor emblem of the saint can be seen carved in stone details around the church. St. Clement was deconsecrated in the 1970's and used briefly as storage of the Wolsey Theatre Group. Following a fire in the 1980's the church underwent significant restoration works. The church is currently being brought back into the cultural and social life of the community it was built to serve, as Ipswich's Arts Centre."
Canvey Wick	Northwick Road, Canvey Island, United Kingdom	SS8 0PT	This strange and wonderful sci-fi landscape is described as a little brownfield rainforest by Natural England officer Dr Chris Gibson, the results of surveys have shown Canvey Wick to have more biodiversity per square foot than any other site in the UK•This nature reserve was designated a Site of Special Scientific Interest (SSSI) on 11 February 2005 the first brownfield site to be protected specifically for its invertebrates.'
The ruins of St Mary's Church and the Witches Wooden Leg	Back Road, Somerton, Great Yarmouth, United Kingdom	NR29	"This is a quiet hidden place of magic, elusive and hard to find, after visiting I have since lost all photos of my journey. Only the walls of the church remain, with a huge oak in its centre bursting through what would be the roof. This is the result of a curse from the local witch, the tree growing from her wooden leg. It's a place where I think it's possible to reconnect with the histories of witchcraft so prevalent in East Anglia."
Wellington Pier Roller Rink	Marine Parade, Great Yarmouth, United Kingdom	NR30 3JF	"It's practical and poetic. Fond memories of gliding around this as a child. Nature is slowly reclaiming the surface and space which is currently inaccessible but feels like it could be activated in new ways."
Wisbech Castle	Museum Square, Wisbech, United Kingdom	PE13 1ES	"Fantastic history, beautiful building, stunning location, so much of interest, yet easily passed by"
Boon's Heath	The Shrublands, Burgh Saint Peter, United Kingdom	NR34 0BB	"A former quarry restored to heathland and woodland, with panoramic view over the Waveney valley, footpath access, picnic benches. Ideal situation for public art. https://www.ordnancesurvey.co.uk/getoutside/local/boons-heath-south-norfolk "

Knettishall Heath	Knettishall Heath Country Park, Knettishall, United Kingdom	IP22 2TQ	"Beautiful part of the Brecks, a former Country Park now managed as a heathland and woodland nature reserve. Has visitor centre and public conveniences, educational facilities, all managed by Suffolk Wildlife trust. End of Icknield Way and start of Peddar's Way trails. See http://www.suffolkwildlifetrust.org/knettishallheath/ "
Emneth	Norfolk, United Kingdom	pe14	"lovely place famous for the Rev Awdry and for Thomas the tank engine"
Five Finger Point	Blythburgh, United Kingdom	IP19 9NF	"The postcode leads to a house off the road next to the junction, which is almost halfway towards Westleton from Blythburgh. There are 4 exits visible on the map, but there is also a track leading to a car park, making it, as we knew it, Five Finger Point. The car park is easily visible from the road and would make an interesting space for a public project. The crossroads are regularly used by people visiting the area for local walks on the heath, and when driving or cycling towards Westleton, Dunwich and RSPB Minsmere from the A12."
Royston Heath	Baldock Road, Royston, United Kingdom	SG8	"It's high and windy and spacious"
Outney Common	Bungay, United Kingdom	NR35	"An interconnected series of meadows, this common is an expanse bounded by the Waveney: rough watermeadow terrain that is summer is like an African savannah, in winter like a peat bog. I will try to send a picture...."
Kitty Witches Row	Great Yarmouth, United Kingdom	NR30 2PA	"I'd like to nominate Kitty Witches Row, a few years back some friends and I made a piece of film about the woman in folklore who at certain times smeared their faces with fishblood, dressed up as men and demanded money from the rich. Interesting stuff indeed! either for performance art or site specific work."
Broomway	Foulness Island, United Kingdom		"I walked the Broomway last year and still I can't quite believe it wasn't a dream. Known as Britain's most treacherous path because of the rapid tides, the route takes you from mainland Essex to the MoD controlled island of Foulness. The four-hour journey is like navigating the surface of another planet; walking on silver water, into a hazy, far-off horizon. This is Essex at its best: strange, beautiful and potentially lethal."
Ness Point Lowestoft	Ness Point, Lowestoft, United Kingdom	NR32 1UZ	"It is the most Easterly Point in England facing the elements of the sea, it is the first place the sun comes each day and is in need of some artistic flare"
Shredded Wheat Factory	Welwyn Garden City, United Kingdom	AL7	"This is such an iconic art deco building that everybody sees when they pass through WGC station. It is now deteriorating and there've been a few proposals to turn it into luxury flats or something. An art project would be way more interesting."
Ness Point	Lowestoft, United Kingdom	NR32 4	Ness Point is the most easterly point of Great Britain yet doesn't get the recognition it deserves!
Murray Edwards College	Murray Edwards College, Huntingdon Road, Cambridge, United Kingdom	CB3 0DF	"I did an internship here - and was overwhelmed by the beautiful and free to visit art collection. It, and the stunning brutalist building, inspired me everyday"
Waterways	16 North Dr, Great Yarmouth NR30 4EW, United Kingdom	NR30 4EW	"A neglected relic of a once popular seaside resort"
Wellesley Recreation Ground	Wellesley Road, Great Yarmouth, United Kingdom	NR30 2AR	"Under celebrated oldest surviving grandstand in English football"
St Vincent de Paul tabernacle church	Ditton Lane, Fen Ditton, United Kingdom	Cb5 8sp	"I think the design of tabernacles is a wonderful needs-led story. This church has moved around the city and was reconfigured to work better too. I think it is overlooked and it would be great to celebrate this overlooked building."
Barge Pier	Shoeburyness, Southend-on-Sea, United Kingdom	ss3 9SB	"The recent poppies exhibition revealed a special place commemorating sacrifice by our countrymen and women. A permanent offer here would be very fitting"
Walsoken	Wisbech, United Kingdom	Pe14	"I grew up here but it has fantastic links to history that is overlooked"
Laindon Shopping Centre	Aston Road, Laindon, Basildon, United Kingdom	SS15 6NX	"A ruin from an era more optimistic, utilitarian and experimental than today."
Broomway	Waking Stairs, Stairs Road, Southend-on-Sea, United Kingdom	ss39xj	"With eerie and almost mystical sounding accounts of medieval farmers and doctors risking a watery death by passing through fog drenched brooms, this historical and treacherous byway deserves to truly reappear as it once did with the tide."
Chelmsford Museum	Oaklands Park, Chelmsford, United Kingdom	CM2 9AQ	"The living beehive and history of Chelmsford is great."
Sandford Mill Science and Education Centre	Sandford Mill Road, Chelmsford, United Kingdom	CM2 6NY	"Great outdoor learning facility with fantastic event days"

The Fry Art Gallery	19a Castle Street, Saffron Walden, United Kingdom	CB10 1BD	"A hidden gem with a fascinating collection and exhibitions"
Ness Point	Lowestoft, United Kingdom	NR32 1UZ	"It is the most easterly point of England, and Lowestoft deserves more recognition for it's lovely shores"
RAF Thurleigh Airfield	Bedfordshire, Thurleigh Rd, Bedford, United Kingdom	MK44 2YP	"Ever since it's closure in 1997, Thurleigh airfield has become known as the 'car graveyard' of Bedfordshire. This is an unusual and overlooked site, the simplicity of the cars being left to rot in their 1000s is oddly both melancholic and exciting."
SaltHouse Marshes	Salthouse, North Norfolk District, United Kingdom	NR25 7SA	"There are a multitude of spooky, magical, marshy, pools which belong in a Studio Ghibli film. They are haunting and beautiful and in the right light are silver and purple. There are birds.... so many birds...."
The Witches Heart of Kings Lynn	Tuesday Market Place, King's Lynn, United Kingdom	PE30 1EZ	"The Tuesday Marketplace in King's Lynn (the town's central market area now a rather large cobblestone car park bordered by the Corn Exchange and a variety of pubs and hotels) was, for many years, the scene of the public execution of 'witches'. Having been accused (and found guilty) of witchcraft, Margaret Read was burned alive in Lynn's Tuesday Marketplace in 1590. The legend (of which there are several versions) states that, whilst she was being consumed by the flames, Margaret's heart spontaneously burst from her body and hit the wall of a house opposite searing a permanent sign into the brickwork that can still be seen to this day. The heart is then said to have quite consciously bounced all the way out of town and into the River Ouse where it disappeared beneath the surface of the water in angry, sulphurous waves that recalled the bubbling of a cauldron. The Lynn 'witch's heart' (also known as the Diamond Heart) can be seen high up on the brickwork of House No 15/16 on the north side of Tuesday Marketplace."
Warham Camp/ Hill Fort	Warham, North Norfolk District, United Kingdom		"Its STUNNING. The fort is bigger than you think, and more magical. Its near the River Stiffkey, south of the village of Warham. Warham Camp is circular, has a diameter of 212 metres with a 3-metre-high double bank and ditch. It dates to the last few centuries before the Roman invasion of Britain, with evidence of post-occupation activity. The University of East Anglia has described it as the best-preserved hill fort in Norfolk."
Martello Tower	Aldeburgh, Suffolk IP15 5NA, United Kingdom	IP15 5NA	"It was built to keep Napoleon out between 1808 and 1812 and is incredibly unique; it is one of the only remaining towers."
Pitstone Windmill	Pitstone, Leighton Buzzard, United Kingdom	LU7 9ER	"It is one of the earliest forms of windmill still standing today and is a national, industrial treasure."
Tring Reservoir	Tring Rural, Tring HP23 4LH, United Kingdom	HP23 4LH	"The reservoirs are beautiful and serene."
Corner of Cavendish Way/ Comet Way	Cavendish Way, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL9 9RH	A neglected corner overlooking the, soon to disappear, iconic Comet Hotel and busy Comet Roundabout. A major road sign has not been replaced after a major storm 3 years ago and presents an opportunity to enhance this busy corner (and perhaps mark Hatfields aviation heritage
St Peter's Chapel on the Wall	Bradwell-on-Sea, United Kingdom	CM0 7PN	"It's so spiritual...I want to see that spirit reflected in art"
Royston Cave	Royston Cave, Melbourn Street, Royston, United Kingdom	SG8 7BZ	"Unique cave carvings. Amazing hidden heritage."
The Black Tower, Norwich	Carrow Hill, Norwich, United Kingdom	NR1 2AJ	"The Black Tower is tucked away and overlooked. It's a beautiful part of the wall that used to surround Norwich. Plants are growing on it, over it and inside the tower itself. I have lived here all my life and found out that it existed and where it was located only this year (I am 47). It's part of our history and is being left to deteriorate. It could be included on walks and promoted to tourists. It is such a shame to see it being neglected."
Mill Road Cemetery	Cambridge, United Kingdom	CB12AW	"Established in 1848, the cemetery has graves from a number of Cambridge parishes. There gravestones of famous academics and tiny children, broken statuary, half-sunken slabs and border stones. But the place is very much alive. It's the biggest green space in a congested area. It allows disaffected teens to smoke surreptitiously and toddlers to smash their way through puddles and old people to walk dogs and homeless people to hang out in a non-threatening place and everyone to pick blackberries, cherries, elderflower, etc, for home cooking. According to wikipedia, the cemetery is also listed as a City Wildlife Site, containing many indicator plant species for undisturbed neutral/calcareous grassland amongst the 110+ species identified. At least 35 species of bird, 23 species of butterflies and several species of mammal have also been reported, including the European dormouse and weasel."

roman temple site	Templefields Harlow, Temple Bank, Harlow, United Kingdom	cm20 2dp	"a sacred roman temple site that is a tranquil haven hidden behind industrial units, the goddess 'Minerva who was worshipped here was the goddess of arts and culture"
Mill Road Cemetery	Mill Road, Cambridge CB1 2AW, United Kingdom	CB1 2AW	"A beautiful quiet spot"
Peter Scott Walk	The Wash, Norfolk	PE12 9YT	"It's beautiful and empty"
Saffron Walden Town Library	2 King St, Saffron Walden, Essex, United Kingdom	CB10 1ES	"Founded in 1832 as the Saffron Walden Literary & Scientific Institution, this is a hidden gem bursting with a surprisingly varied collection of books dating from the 14th century onwards. An airy Victorian reading room is surrounded by shelves loaded with local history, reference and numerous volumes donated by the Gibson family, the local bankers and philanthropists, who supported the library in its early days. The collection of more than 25,000 books demonstrates the wide-ranging interests of the nineteenth century founders and later librarians. Natural history, literature, art and bibliography are all well represented but there is a smattering of virtually every subject including several scrapbooks of ephemera from the Great Exhibition and some wonderful examples of early photographic illustration. New works are added regularly to the core collection and a broad selection of academic journals can be found on open display. Here is a chance to take time out from the bustle of the 21st century and to delve into one of the best public collections of books in Essex."
Happisburgh beach, Norfolk	Happisburgh, United Kingdom	NR12 0PY	"As is the case with several places on the east coast (e.g. Dunwich, Walton-on-the-Naze), Happisburgh has lost much of its land mass to the sea. This is both romantic and terrifying, as we conjure up in our minds the crumbled remnants of lost lives sitting on the sea bed, hidden from sight, but perhaps remembered (or imagined) by those left behind."
Derelict Blockbuster	364 London Rd, Southend-on-Sea, United Kingdom	SS0 7HZ	"This space would be perfect for a gallery or artist studios, it is expansive with great lighting, easy to access and view from the road and has been left unused for too long."
Kettle's Yard collection and gallery	Kettle's Yard, Castle Street, Cambridge, United Kingdom	CB3 0AQ	"Kettle's Yard is a unique setting to view and appreciate modern and contemporary art and music plus countless other arts-related events and education opportunities."
Bigod's Way	Bungay, United Kingdom	NR35 1JR	"This is a walk I discovered with a long ago lover .. he'd just moved to Bungay when we met and every weekend we'd walk a little bit more of the way. I thought I'd mark it down because it's a walk that I love, we walked it in all weathers, sunshine, rain and snow and i never tired of it, it was beautiful in every season. I have made work celebrating our walks and it is deep-set in my heart."
Springmead Gardens	Spring Chase, Brightlingsea, Colchester CO7 0JR, United Kingdom	CO7 0JR	"Springmead Gardens in Brightlingsea is a tiny public space, which my friend introduced to me. We took a detour down an alley and there it was, snug and shady between some houses. I would like to nominate this place as it felt like an exciting and secret find. There were oversized brasicas and a tranquil atmosphere."
Scolt Head Point	Burnham Overy, United Kingdom	PE31 8JF	"The walk out to the point from Burnham Overy Staithe is something quite special. It's a path and place that belongs in my family's psyche. I have taken that path as a child, a mother and a granny. It is particularly nice at sunrise when there are fewer walkers and sometimes you might see a hare on the beach."
Jubilee Park	Prospect Street, Ipswich, United Kingdom	IP1 2JX	"The most diverse, bombastic, energetic and run down parts of Ipswich, here hosts families from all over the world, coming together in a melting pot of cultural diversity. On the site of a neglected park, abandoned shut down pub and closed social working mans club lies the heart of a homestead for some of the most vibrant people ever to meet - here lies huge potential for change, working with community groups, the local school and the near by theatre - this could house unbelievable opportunities if it were just given the chance..."
Neatishead Radar Base	Neatishead, Norwich NR12 8YB, United Kingdom	NR12 8YB	"It is very unique and interesting. It is an incredibly interesting piece of Norfolk history."
Martello Tower, Jaywick Sands	Belsize Avenue, Jaywick, United Kingdom	CO15 2LF	"A real pleasure to visit and the staff re very keen to get people involved, whether local or holiday makers"
St Ives (Nr Huntingdon)	Saint Ives, Cambridgeshire, United Kingdom	PE27 5BX	"In 1899 the nearby town of Huntingdon adandoned their plan to erect a statue of Oliver Cromwell, and the opportunity was seized by St Ives" The poor relation to Cambridge St Ives has a great location but is in dire need of a cultural uplift."
Beacon Hill Fort	Harwich, United Kingdom	CO12 3NS	"Because is it a site of historical importance and is currently almost inaccessible to the public because of the surrounding fencing on the promenade, and over-grown flora and fauna. Currently this is considered to be a blot on the landscape but could be a park with history!"

Nightingale Avenue Park	Nightingale Avenue, Cambridge, United Kingdom	CB1 8SG	Beautiful local sports and play park. Used and enjoyed by all ages.
Parkers Piece	Parkside, Cambridge, United Kingdom	CB1 1JE	Central point, very visible. Well used.
Wells Maltings Project	Wells Maltings Project, Staithe Street, Wells-next-the-Sea, Norfolk, United Kingdom	NR23 1AU	"An exciting project space for community, art and heritage. Currently being revived and restored. Set in the heart of the thriving community of Wells-next-the-sea. Would be great to see some innovative and inspiring contemporary art here."
Panacea Museum	9 Newnham Road, Bedford, United Kingdom	MK40 3NX	This is a fascinating museum that tells the story of a religious movement that started in Bedford in the early 20th century and which had a worldwide reach. Mabel "Octavia" Baltrop was heralded as the Shiloh or second coming of the Messiah and was seen as the eighth in a line of prophets reaching back to Joanna Southcott in the 18th Century. The building is the place where it was hoped that 24 bishops and attendant others would gather to open Joanna Southcott's box of prophecies at a time of national crisis. The box remains unopened. A lovely building which charts the rise of the Panacea movement and the prophets that came before including letters from people around the world who wrote in for the panacea, a small piece of cloth over which Mabel had breathed, which was said to cure all ills. Entry is completely free, there is a small cafe in the communal garden which was seen as the garden of Eden. The place has a very peaceful atmosphere. No followers are still living but the community, which owned many houses in Bedford, left the property in trust.
St Andrew's Church	Lamas, Norfolk, United Kingdom	NR10 5JQ	"The church and the surroundings evoke the character of the Bure Valley."
Coprolite Street	Coprolite Street, Ipswich, United Kingdom	IP3 0BN	"Coprolite is Fossilised Dinosaur Poo! Coprolite Street was once the site of Fison one of the worlds first manufacturers of fertilizers - super phosphate - made from the ground up nodules of coprolite. A whole coprolite mining industry sprung up across the region during the 19th century. Shillington in Bedfordshire was actually called shittington... i will see if I can get that on the map too"
Silver End Essex	Braintree, United Kingdom	CM8 3QQ	"Noteworthy early examples of Modernist architectural design; the distinctive white, flat-roofed houses on Francis Way and Silver Street are the work of influential Scottish architect Thomas S. Tait, a leading designer of Art Deco and Streamline Moderne buildings in the 20th Century who is also credited with designing the concrete pylons on Sydney Harbour Bridge. Of note are the steel window frames manufactured by Crittall's firm as a test for their use in the damp English climate. https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Silver_End "
Bharat Bhavan Mill Road Former Free Library	1 Bharat Bhavan, Cambridge	CB1 2AZ	"It is one of the few 'light handsome Victorian buildings' in the area. Red brick and Mansfield stone. It was a lending library, a place to meet and share ideas. Then later a wonderful Indian community celebrated festivals and held exhibitions. It is a place to embrace and preserve."
Little Gidding	Ferrar House, Little Gidding, Huntingdon, United Kingdom	PE28 5RJ	"If you came this way, Taking any route, starting from anywhere, At any time or at any season, It would always be the same: you would have to put off Sense and notion." (T. S. Eliot's Little Gidding). V interesting history in relation to community living - Nicholas Ferrar community in 1600s and then Society of Christ the Sower, an ecumenical religious community 1970 - 1998 (disbanded under a cloud). A magical place.
The Old Falcon	20 Market Place, Saint Neots, United Kingdom	PE19 2AW	"An iconic building in this Cambridgeshire market town that has been derelict for a decade and would be a perfect place as an art project to regenerate interest and discussions about its future."
Priory Park	Priory Park, Saint Neots, United Kingdom	PE19 1RF	"Formerly an 18th century private estate belonging to the Rowley family, the 80 acre site is now managed by the district council and is the ideal location for a large scale art project"
Brampton Wood	Brampton Road, Huntingdon, United Kingdom	PE19 5UQ	"900 year-old woodland managed by the Wildlife Trust and is one of those hidden gems people don't know about."
St Neots Common	Riversmead, Saint Neots, United Kingdom	PE19 1RU	"Once common land where locals where allowed to graze their cattle, now an open field that could be an outdoor art space."
Landguard Fort	Landguard Fort, View Point Road, Felixstowe, United Kingdom	IP11 3TW	"Grade I listed Napoleonic fort with a long history and many interesting rooms and spaces within it."
St Clement's Church	St Clement's Rd, Grays, United Kingdom	RM20 4AL	"Under used church in close proximity to Proctor and Gamble factory."

Thetford Forest	High Lodge Thetford Forest	IP27 0AF	"I went on a Brownie Pack holiday in Thetford Forest in the 1970s. I remember the storms and ensuing nightmares, the hot chocolate and the freezing dorms best but it's a magical place, timeless and alien. Created after WWI to provide much-needed timber preserves, it's the largest lowland pine forest in Britain. Put some art in it. I need an excuse to return."
Mill Road Library	112 Mill Road, Cambridge, United Kingdom	CB1 2AZ	"It is a beautiful Victorian Building"
Newgate Street Village Tennis Court	Newgate Street Village, Hatfield, United Kingdom	SG13 8RP	"The tennis courts (2) are in an enclosed space in the village centre beside the village hall. They have fallen into disrepair with a cracked uneven surface and weeds growing throughout. Despite this they are still used daily by villagers. A locally run tennis club does school activities there with primary aged children. This would be a perfect spot for a multi use playground scheme which would be suitable for tennis, basketball etc."
Drover Way Green Area near roundabout	Drovers Way, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 0PU	"It is a warm, green area with a real potential to show off some wonderful artwork to enhance the neighbourhood."
Hatfield train station	Hatfield AL9 5AB, United Kingdom	AL9 5AB	"This location has a high volume of traffic of new visitors to Hatfield and would be a prime location for artworks. At the moment the walls are barren of any artwork and whilst many people have spare time to wait here, this would be an ideal setting for artworks and to showcase what Hatfield has to offer."
The People's Community Garden	Halifax Road, Ipswich, United Kingdom	IP2 8RE	"Tucked away in the middle of a large estate in a 'hard pressed' area of Ipswich is a beautiful garden for local people to use to improve their mental and physical health. Maintained by volunteers of all ages, the garden provides a haven for all sorts of wildlife, traditional growing areas for the community to grow vegetables and fruit, a place to meet and make friends and learn or share skills. Linking with the garden is a Bee Garden with hives to help to protect the bee population, as well as, train volunteers in bee keeping and building a bee friendly environment. The Garden has helped many people over the last ten years to improve their lives and we would like more people to know about this amazing garden and to come and get involved in this fantastic community project."
Sudbury Meadows	22 Friars Street, Sudbury, United Kingdom	CO10 2AA	"This is a place I go when I need some quiet time. It brings me peace during stressful times and is filled with so much wildlife. It is good for my mental and physical wellbeing and it so nice to see a beautiful, unspoilt nature spot amongst all this urban living. It should be protected and loved!"
Heybridge Basin Lock	Heybridge Basin, United Kingdom	CM9 4RY	"This is a beautiful spot to visit and walk, but often overlooked for it's busier neighbour Maldon."
Stour Estuary	Wrabness, United Kingdom	CO11 2BB	"Beautiful Peaceful Setting with wonderful sunsets"
West End Beach	Dovercourt, Harwich, United Kingdom	CO12 3SF	"It's a lovely quiet beach at the end of a beautiful walk along the sea wall past South Hall Creek."
Little Gidding Church	Little Gidding, Huntingdon, United Kingdom	PE17 9RJ	"A very important place of pilgrimage, the first religious community after The Dissolution of The Monasteries, the title of TS Eliot's last poem In The Four Quartets, hugely influential to a generation of people who were inspired by its writing in 1942, home to The Community of Christ The Sower."
Hatfield Train Station	Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL9 5AB	"Newly refurbished Train Station with a lot of commuters for work and university"
Hatfield Train Station	Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL9 5AB	"The Train Station sees hundreds of people everyday passing for work, study and other trips"
Manningtree Beach	Manningtree, United Kingdom	CO11 1AU	Because I like boats and it is a sweet little beach (M, aged 12)
Seawick Holiday Park	Seawick Holiday Park, Beach Road, Clacton-on-Sea, United Kingdom	CO16 8SG	Because my sister and nieces are down here, also relaxing
Colchester Castle	Colchester Castle Park, High Street, Colchester, United Kingdom	CO1 1TJ	I just like that it's historical
The Woods of Mistley	Old Knobbly, Mistley, United Kingdom		"Its lovely and quiet with hidden obstackalls and a park (D, aged 11)"
Smugglers Oak	Fingringhoe, United Kingdom	CO5 7BG	"My grandparents used to live in the village of Fingringhoe, and when we visited they used to tell us the tale about a pirate from Rowhedge who had been caught smuggling. He was executed on this spot over one hundred years ago then buried with an acorn in his mouth, which grew to be a huge oak tree. We were scared yet fascinated by this giant haunted oak, situated by a shady pond and natural spring, opposite the Whalebone pub. With a girth of over seven metres, my sister and I would stare at it until one of us saw the face of the pirate in the bark, and then chase the other one away screaming. I still visit it often and it is timeless â€” a testament to my childhood, the innocent enjoyment of scaring each other with ghost stories, and our avid imaginations."

Cudmore Grove	Cudmore Grove Country Park, Broman's Lane, East Mersea, United Kingdom	CO5 8UE	"My favourite place in Essex, on the less touristy, rougher side of Mersea Island - a haven for poets and dog walkers. It feels neglected, slowly being reclaimed by the sea. Every time I go, there are new landslides with felled trees with roots upended, lying helpless and forgotten on the orange sand. Like woolly mammoths. Former buildings, brick stairways and WW2 pillbox remains have collapsed at some point, and are now halfway into the sea, the edges of the concrete and brick being gradually softened by the tide. Yet it is also a much loved place, with memorial benches made out of driftwood dedicated to those who lived on or enjoyed the island. It is a place of inevitability, transience and remembrance. Very poignant. Almost post apocalyptic."
Basement at The Missing Kind shop	21 Castle Meadow, Norwich, United Kingdom	NR1 3DH	"It's unusual and apparently the tunnel could lead to the castle!"
Wicken Fen	Wicken Fen National Nature Reserve, Lode Lane, Wicken, United Kingdom	CB7 5XP	A sublime peaty landscape
Old hall marshes	Tollesbury, United Kingdom	CM9 8TP	Remnant of the original sea-marshes that once ringed Essex
Paines Mill	Bedford Street, St Neots, United Kingdom	PE19 1HP	The former Paines Flour Mill is significant in St Neot's history. This striking building is tucked away behind the main town centre. It now provides accommodation to 16-25 year olds in need. The side view of the tower reveals the doors through which goods would have entered and left the building with carts positioned directly below with a hoist bracketed out from above.
Eastgate Shopping Centre, Basildon.	Basildon, United Kingdom	SS14 1EB	When it opened in 1980 it was the largest indoor shopping centre in Europe. I remember visiting there every week with my mother and nan as a toddler; the galleria in the roof of the centre being my marquee memory "a network of trailing single width escalators leading you up to a warren of small shops/booths all interlinked with partitioned doors and balconies.
Boxted airfield Museum	Langham Lane, Langham, Colchester, United Kingdom	CO4 0HW	We have the largest surviving piece of B26 Marauder Aircraft in the UK.
Parndon Hall	The Princess Alexandra Hospital NHS Trust, Hamstel Road, Harlow, United Kingdom	CM20 1QX	It was the former home of the Arkwright family - descendants of Sir Richard Arkwright. Loftus and Elizabeth had the house built as their family home in Essex in 1867, close to Loftus' relatives. Elizabeth decorated the house in a most astonishing fashion and because the building is owned by an NHS Trust, no money is being spent on repair and maintenance. The house and its contents are deteriorating. It needs to be shared, remembered and enjoyed.
The Gibberd Garden	Marsh Lane, Harlow, United Kingdom	CM17 0NA	Sir Frederick Gibberd bought land and a dwelling on the outskirts of Harlow, the New Town he planned from 1947. On his death in 1984, he left his home and garden to the people of Harlow to enjoy. Run by volunteers, this remarkable garden is enjoyed by many, but unknown to most.
Hertford Theatre	The Wash, Hertford SG14 1PS, United Kingdom	SG14 1PS	"Has a river view, but the space isn't used"
The Fisherman's Chapel	New Road, Leigh-on-Sea SS9 2EA, United Kingdom	SS9 2EA	"The chapel offers an area of warmth, a friendly cross-generational place with good communication. It is highly active in the arts and crafts area and hosts wonderful Gospel Vespers."
Hertford Theatre	The Wash, Hertford SG14 1PS, United Kingdom	SG14 1PS	"A fantastic hub for all the community. Everyone should visit"
Saffron Walden Battle Ditches	Abbey Lane, Saffron Walden CB10, United Kingdom	CB10 1AG	"It's known as the 'battle ditches' but in fact is a sunken earthworks, and could be suitable for some public art."
Cavenham playground	The Street, Cavenham, United Kingdom	IP28 6DA	"Cavenham is a small hamlet, too small to be classified as a village, and so has been classified as 'unsustainable' by the local council, meaning that funding has been cut and they are dependent on donations. It does have a tremendous playground, which families visit from surrounding villages, and that hosts local barbeques. The playground was built on land donated by the local farmer, to help keep the village spirit alive."
Broxbourne Railway Station	Broxbourne EN10 7AS, United Kingdom	EN10 7AS	"Didn't know it existed until train broke down"
Scenic Railway Roller Coaster	Pleasure Beach, Great Yarmouth, United Kingdom	NR30 3EH	"Recently listed, the Scenic Railways Roller Coaster is the second oldest of its type remaining in Britain. Despite its changes and alterations, it so well epitomises Great Yarmouth's identity as a place of fun and frivolity."

Roundabout at Cavendish Way & Bishops Rise	3 Bishops Rise, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 0SG	"This roundabout is one of the first things that visitors to Hatfield sees. We would like them to think that Hatfield is a fun place. See photo for suggestion :)"
Roundabout at Cavendish Way & Bishops Rise	Roe Green Lane, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 0SQ	"It's a sad, grey, forgotten corner of Hatfield that needs brightening up!"
Flatford Mill	Dedham, United Kingdom	CO7 6UJ	It's where my husbands grandparents met.
Aldreth Causeway	River Great Ouse, Cambridgeshire, United Kingdom		"This is the site where Hereward The Wake and his guerilla army fought the Norman invaders, as this was one of the few routes across the fens to Ely. Hereward is of huge local importance and stands as a figure and waged a number of successful campaigns against the French after the invasion of 1066."
Subways between comet way and hatfield garden village	Green Lanes, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 9In	"So unloved! This well used subway is so dark and dank- the residents would love and appreciate some art"
Aylsham Market Square	Market Place, Aylsham NR11 6EH, United Kingdom	NR11 6EH	"It needs some life in it!"
House of Wax	18 Regent Road, Great Yarmouth, United Kingdom	NR30 2AF	"Now closed, the House of Wax was known as the 'world's worst wax works'. A beautiful but dilapidated building, it commemorates Great Yarmouth's brilliant sense of humour."
caistor st edmund	Norwich nr14 8qt	nr14 8qt	"I enjoy walking in this area, especially in the Autumn and winter and there is a roman village nearby and a huge chalk pit. the grassland and woodland is stunning and it is very peaceful."
Trowse Pumping Station	Bracondale, Norwich, United Kingdom	NR1 2EG	"1909 Pumping station currently lying empty & unused. Seems to be in good condition but needs a bit of cleaning up. Victorian building with lots of internal space."
The centre of Brentwood, outside the Bayleaf shopping centre	High Street, Brentwood, United Kingdom	CM14 4BX	"The Peasants Revolt began here when a judge attempting to convict local men was chased back to London."
The mix	Ipswich Street, Stowmarket, United Kingdom	Ip14 1bb	"Its an amazing place for young people with a lit lead by volunteers & would really benefit from something like this to inspire the young people & join the whole community together."
Rochford Police Station (closed 2012)	43-45 South Street, Rochford, Essex, United Kingdom	SS4 1BL	"Rochford Police Station was closed in 2012 due to the Conservative Government's austerity programme. The police station was the first public services building in Rochford town to be closed, boarded up and left to stand empty up to the time of writing (September 2017). In March 2017 the building was sold to undisclosed developers, its future remains unknown. Additional Notes: Rochford Police Station was built in an Edwardian Baroque style in 1914 and was the last building to be designed by Frank Whitmore (1844-1920) an influential architect in Essex during the late nineteenth century and early twentieth century. Also, Rochford Police Station featured in a series of photographs entitled 'Tory Heritage: Rochford' which were shown at the 56th Essex Open Art Exhibition. These architectural images focused on recently closed public services buildings and highlighted the effects of austerity. Additionally, the site provided a waymark on the Rochford Austerity Trail - September 17-26, 2015."
Rochford Royal Mail Delivery Office (closed 2014)	50 East Street, Rochford, Essex, United Kingdom	SS4 1DB	"Rochford Royal Mail Delivery Office was closed in 2014 due to the Conservative Government's austerity programme. The delivery office was the second public services building in Rochford town to be closed, boarded up and left to stand empty up to the time of writing (September 2017). In July 2015 the site was sold to Silver City Estates, it is currently being developed into eight flats by E&M Design Partnership. Additional Notes: Rochford Royal Mail Delivery Office featured in a series of photographs entitled 'Tory Heritage: Rochford' which were shown at the 56th Essex Open Art Exhibition. These architectural images focused on recently closed public services buildings and highlighted the effects of austerity. Additionally, the site provided a waymark on the Rochford Austerity Trail - September 17-26, 2015."

Rochford Adult Community College (closed 2014)	Rocheway, Rochford, Essex, United Kingdom	SS4 1DQ	"Rochford Adult Community College was closed in 2014 due to the Conservative Government's austerity programme. The college was the third public services building in Rochford town to be closed, boarded up and left to stand empty up to the time of writing (September 2017). In February 2017, Essex County Council, Essex Housing and Stanley Bragg Architects proposed to demolish the former Adult Community College (and Secondary Modern School (1937-59)) for redevelopment purposes, such an action according to local opposition will strip Rochford's townscape of its historicity and its people of cherished memories of learning, sporting and dramatic activities. Additional Notes: The former Adult Community College and Secondary Modern School is a unique historic building with a decorative lintel featuring the 1937 construction date and Essex County Council three-seax emblem, quadrangle structure and fine period brickwork - providing an authentic vernacular of historic value, local distinctiveness and civic pride. Please come and visit this endangered building and implore Rochford District Council to conserve and integrate its fabric into the present and future developments. Also, Rochford Adult Community College featured in a series of photographs entitled 'Tory Heritage: Rochford' which were shown at the 56th Essex Open Art Exhibition. These architectural images focused on recently closed public services buildings and highlighted the effects of austerity. Additionally, the site provided a waymark on the Rochford Austerity Trail - September 17-26, 2015."
Hopton St Margaret's Church Ruins	4 Cliff Hill, Gorleston-on-Sea, United Kingdom	NR31 6DG	"This is the eastern most crossing point of the Michael & Mary earth energy currents in the UK - within the church ruins. (across the land from Land's End). You can look it up on the St. Margaret's website or see it as the destination or starting point of the Michael/Mary pilgrimage."
Langford Model Railway	The Museum Of Power, Hatfield Road, Langford, United Kingdom	CM9 6QA	"This ride on railway has steam power and is staffed by volunteer enthusiasts. The platform is complete with ticket booth and signage."
Earlham Cemetery	Earlham Rd, Norwich, United Kingdom	NR2 3RJ	"A place to get lost."
Thompson Water	Thompson, Thetford IP24 1QA, United Kingdom	ip24 1qa	"This is a well known place of people from the village; but it's beauty and sense of history radiates from the old forests, streams and bogs. You can of course view Thompson Water itself, a lake with a walk way around it, first through the old trees and then breaking into the open view of Thompson Water. A real beauty."
Market Place Hatfield	Market Place, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 0JT	"It is a lovely big square but not used for anything much these days. It has lovely big trees and shops and so much character but has been unloved in recent years."
St John Ambulance Hut	St.Albans Road West, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 0EJ	"It's a much loved building but cannot be used anymore. This whole roundabout area would benefit from some love and care."
Hatfield Subways	Town Centre, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10	"We have lots of unloved Subways but many have existing artworks that have been graffitied it would be lovely to see them tidied and loved as they are such a big part of the new town history."
Roundabout Junction Cavendish Way and Bishops Rise	5 Bishops Rise, Hatfield, United Kingdom	EN11 0PX	"I would like to nominate this roundabout because I feel art in Hertfordshire is at a creative high at the moment with many emerging artists who would love to contribute to this great county."
Bridge over Cam on Upware Road	Upware Road, Ely CB7 5YQ, United Kingdom	CB7 5YQ	"It's an amazingly beautiful surprise to be winding down a bumpy rural road to turn a corner and find that you've got the Cam stretching out in in front of you for what seems like miles"
Greyfriars Cloisters	South Quay, Great Yarmouth NR30 2RG, United Kingdom	NR30 2RG	"I would like to see this historic site open to the public. It has a significant history to Great Yarmouth."
Greyfriars Cloisters	South Quay, Great Yarmouth NR30 2RG, United Kingdom	NR30 2RG	"Used. Appreciated. Kept better. Anything other than its currently wasted state. Why? Why?"
Caister Beach Pillbox	Caister-on-Sea, United Kingdom	NR30 5HG	"the 1940 Pillbox that is gradually receding into the waves gives an amazing fixed perspective to the incoming and outgoing tides. And it gives three dimensionality to an otherwise ordinary beach."
Junction Cavendish way and Bishop rise	7 Cavendish Way, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 9RH	"It needs something nice!"
Roundabout Junction Cavendish way and Bishop Rise	5 Cavendish Way, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 9HA	"We need something nice here that represents Hatfield values"
Cavendish Way roundabout	5 Bishops Rise, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 9HA	"Great place to have a piece of art to look at!"

Roundabout at junction of Cavendish way and bishops rise	5 Bishops Rise, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 9HA	"Roundabout looks very dull"
The Tankyard, Thorney	Station Road, Thorney, United Kingdom	PE6 0QE	"The Tankyard at Thorney is a complex of buildings from the Victorian model village of Thorney. It includes a 6 storey watertower, with a cast iron water tank at the top, with a double height cellar where there used to be steam engines. It is now a much loved village hall, with surrounding lawns, wedding venue and site of the village's community-run Museum. It houses a room for the Parish Council, but may become even more important to the village if the Museum comes here. Unfortunately, it is a building which has been neglected in terms of upkeep and feels a bit fragile. It grabs people's attention from a distance though, as a magnificent tower in a flat Fenland landscape."
Norwich City Hall	Norwich City Council, St Peters St, Norwich, United Kingdom	NR2 1NH	"This majestic and iconic building is a symbol of the city. Instantly recognisable and a back drop to so many events and protests."
Old Knobbley	Old Knobbley, Mistley, United Kingdom	CO11 2NL	"A fabulous old tree. Apparently, it was a sanctuary for witches in the past, according to folklore!
Bawsey Country Park	Bawsey Country Park (Crystal Waters), B1145, King's Lynn, United Kingdom	PE32 1EP	"It is an area of old sand workings and is important not only as a recreational space, but also for its geological and biological interest."
The Hilltop shopping precinct, South Hatfield	High View, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 8HZ	"The shopping area is in need of some tlc - the square is outdated and run down, as are the garages behind it. Could do with being given a new lease of life."
Cambridge Lakes	Burnside, Cambridge, United Kingdom	CB1 3PA	"The Lakes are a huge unused resource for Cambridge. Plans to open them up for public access progresses SLOWLY; A New Geographies commission would make the whole project much more visible and attract public support."
White Lion Square, Town Centre	Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 0JJ	"Once the hub of the post-war new town, now much under-used. Needs a new focus."
The Gibberd Garden	Marsh Lane, Harlow, United Kingdom	CM17 0NA	"So many lovely pieces of art in beautiful surroundings. Not appreciated enough or visited by many people."
5th Avenue	City Road, Peterborough, United Kingdom	PE1 1XS	"Right in the city centre. Empty for at least 10 years (not sure how long). Prime location for projection mapping on the outside. Many a local artist's fantasy art centre "if only we had money". Often speculated about. Used to be a popular club for the alternative crowd."
BHS	51-57 St Peter's St, St Albans, United Kingdom	AL1 3DY	"I'm sure some of the more affluent residents of St Albans would like to see this redundant shop space, formerly BHS, turned into a John Lewis. No doubt I would shop there myself. However, in the meantime, it could be put to productive use as a community hub/for a participatory art exhibit. In a time of increased business rates and threats of pubs closing, temporarily using the space as something other than another Costa Coffee has the potential to empower locals to claim back their Highstreet."
Verulamium Park - Cathedral Tree Stump Corner	St Albans Cathedral, St Albans, United Kingdom	AL1 1BY	"Does Verulamium Park have a bylaw that doesn't allow buskers or preachers? I'm not sure. Would this tree stump fit the soapbox or small stepladder rules set by the likes of Hyde Park's corner? I'm not sure either, but I'd like to see it used as a Speakers Corner or something other than a Cathedral Selfie spot before it's gone. Tree stumps allegedly last up to 10 years before rotting. This one's been here at least 9 as I remember looking up as a school friend stood on it with his fists in the air. More often than not I see a child standing on the stump or attempting to climb up. As an adult I too have the urge to step up and leap down with the same glee a child gets from walking along and leaping down off a garden wall."
The Empire Cinema	Marine Parade, Great Yarmouth, United Kingdom	NR30 2HF	"An iconic building left neglected with so much potential. Would make a big difference to the seafront to have this building back in use."
Land East of the High Street	Factory Lane East, Halstead, United Kingdom	CO9 2JH	"In our town centre, behind fences and foliage, is a green space containing woodland, watercourses, a neglected Victorian garden with a crumbling Gothic folly and former Dig for Victory allotments. Venture further through the trees and you come across 2 lines of long low mounds: the semi-sunken forms of 15 Costain air raid shelters, built by Courtaulds in 1939 to protect employees in their Halstead factory who contributed to the war effort by weaving artificial silk for parachutes. Poised between the 2 lines is the last in this rare group of 16 surviving WW2 air raid shelters: built above ground in reinforced brick, its solid form now clad in ivy. Despite the closeness to the high street, this unique combination of natural and historic built assets have been hidden for decades. Yet they hold special memories for the many people who worked at the local factory, or who played in this woods and shelters as children. A growing number of residents believe it is time for these assets to be seen, and their significance recognised and cherished for generations to come."

Roundabout junction Cavendish Way/Bishops Rise.	Bishops Rise, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 0SG	"Currently a featureless roundabout. Local art could add an inspirational message for locals and visitors alike."
Tilbury Riverside Station	Fort Road, Tilbury, United Kingdom	RM18 7HD	"In June 1948 the SS Empire Windrush docked at Tilbury on its voyage from the Caribbean, with 500 migrants on board seeking a new life in the United Kingdom away from the economic depression that had taken hold in their homelands. These men and women were the first significant wave of migrants to come to Britain in the immediate post-war years and represent the beginnings of Britain's black community as we know it today."
Nightingale Garden	Nightingale Recreation Ground, Cambridge, United Kingdom	CB1 8SG	"'Secret community garden' upcycled by volunteers from a former bowling green"
Rock Road Library	69 Rock Road, Cambridge, United Kingdom	CB1 7UG	"A charming suburban, art deco, branch library with its own secret garden with apple orchard"
St George's Theatre	King Street, Great Yarmouth, Norfolk NR30 2PG, United Kingdom	NR30 2PG	"It is an amazing building over 300 years old and absolutely beautiful"
Walton Mere and site of old windmill	Walton on the Naze, United Kingdom	CO14 8PF	"Walton Mere used to be a popular summer boating lake with a former windmill but now lies as empty marshland and is mostly forgotten and not visited by holiday makers"
Baconsthorpe Castle	Baconsthorpe, United Kingdom	NR256LE	"Wonderful ruined castle that nobody knows about"
Priory Park	Priory Hill Road, St Neots, United Kingdom	PE19 1DY	"Home to dog walkers, young weekend footballers and Forest School for the local Infant school, Priory Park is 80 acres of 18th century parkland with extensive mature woodland, and large open spaces, formally part of the Rowley Estate and if you know where to look you can still see medieval ridge and furrow land waves created by several centuries of feudal communal farming."
Dragon Hall	Writers' Centre Norwich, King Street, Norwich, United Kingdom	NR1 1QE	"It's an amazing, unique 15th C sole trading merchant's hall about to start a new life as The National Centre for Writing - it's full of stories!"
Hatfield Leisure Centre	Travellers Ln, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 8TJ	"It's a place that local people visit regularly, however it could do with a bit of love and would be a great spot for some art."
Southdown Ponds	30-34 Southdown Road, Harpenden, United Kingdom	AL5 1PF	"It's a gorgeous, hidden and under-appreciated duck pond on Harpenden Common, obscured by trees and home to a vast array of flora and fauna."
Thrifts Walk Studios'	1 Thrifts Walk, Cambridge, United Kingdom	CB4 1NR	"I would like to nominate this space as I believe it has a great impact on the community in Cambridge (North), hosting and providing community arts activities while also providing affordable studio spaces for artist in Cambridge. They believe that everyone should be able to have the chance to access art, regardless of background. Each year, we also programme arts projects with an inclusive focus, loosely themed around a particular theme. They catalyse both artistic and community development, encouraging risk and accessibility to the arts."
Shipwrights	241 Benfleet Road, Benfleet, United Kingdom	SS7 1QG	This a small modernist gem designed by Wells Coates and built in 1937 for John Wyborne; one of the directors of Ecko (electronics company) in Southend-on-Sea.
Norwich Heathgate concrete arial walkways	Heathgate, Norwich NR3 1PW, United Kingdom	NR3 1PW	"Located in a neglected social housing estate on the edge of Mousehold Heath in north Norwich, these concrete 'walkways in the sky' speak of a bold architectural and social optimism. There is something interestingly anachronistic about them, a vision of a future which has not come to pass."
Anglia square	Magdalen Street, Norwich, United Kingdom	NR3 1DZ	"There is an enormous brutalist office block, boarded up for ten years"
Old train track of Chatteris station	2 Old Station Pl, Chatteris PE16 6BF, UK	PE16 6BF	"The site of the old Chatteris station closed in the 1970s. The A14 was built on top of the tracks."
Empress Cinema, now Swimming Pool	Empress Swimming Pool, Park Street, Chatteris, United Kingdom	PE16 6AB	"The Empress Cinema was opened on 24th December 1934, as part of the H. Bancroft Circuit. It had a 38 feet wide proscenium and there were 479 seats in the stalls, and stone pillars supported the balcony which had 76 seats. In the early-1950's it was taken over by an independent Chatteris Amusements Ltd. It was closed on 31st December 1961. Since 2009, it operates as the Empress Swimming Pool.
Chatteris library	Chatteris Library, Furrowfields Road, Chatteris, United Kingdom	PE16 6DY	"I love the library" - Daniel, 8 yrs old.
The Munnings Art Museum	Castle Hill, Dedham, United Kingdom	CO7 6AZ	"The former home of artist Sir Alfred Munnings, past president of the Royal Academy. Best know for painting horses, Munnings also painted hundreds of scenes of the local landscape and help found the Dedham Vale Society for the protection of the countryside."

Time & Tide Museum	Blackfriars' Road, Great Yarmouth, United Kingdom	NR30 3BX	Time & Tide Museum tells the fascinating story of Great Yarmouth and its people from the Ice Age to the present day. It is housed in a former herring smoking factory that was once at the centre of the town's thriving fishing industry. The museum houses a fascinating collection of artefacts that would provide a wealth of inspiration for a site-specific artwork.
Shannocks Hotel Sheringham	1 High Street, Sheringham, United Kingdom	NR26 8JP	It's a stunning old hotel right on the sea front of the wild, sublime North Sea. Lots of renovation ideas have fallen through. It's a building that really needs to be taken by the balls and turned into something truly spectacular in this legendary seaside town!!!! Please bring art and youth and balls to Sheringham
Leiston old abbey chapel/gun emplacement	Eastbridge, Leiston, Suffolk, United Kingdom	IP16 4SN	Isolated on a low rise in the marshes, the abbey was physically moved in the 13th century, reusing the stone, to a new site a few miles inland due to the threat of flooding. A small chapel remains, which during WW2 a gun emplacement was hidden. Now to be potentially overshadowed by the proposed Sizewell C nuclear reactors. Religion, war, and the environment...
Kett's Heights	Kett's Hill, Norwich, United Kingdom	NR1 4EX	Ketts Heights is one of Norwich's best-kept secrets, a steeply wooded space intersected by Victorian steps and paths, leading to a ruined medieval chapel and one of the most impressive panoramas over Norwich. Ketts Heights has many historical associations dating back to the ruins of the 11th-century chapel of St Michael, which can still be seen at the viewpoint. The chapel was abandoned in 1539 after the dissolution of nearby St Leonards Priory. In 1549 Robert Kett set up his headquarters here during the Norfolk rebellion when he besieged the City and housed his prisoners in the adjacent St Leonards Priory. During the late Victorian era, walks and flights of steps were laid out around the romantic chapel ruins and it became a fashionable place to visit. The site was owned and cared for by the nearby gasworks, but during the Second World War the garden was turned into allotments before becoming derelict. The Friends of Ketts Heights was set up in November 2015 to support the regeneration of Ketts Heights so that it can be a welcoming space for the local community and visitors to Norwich; an attractive space with a wide diversity of plants and wildlife; an event space with activities to suit a wide audience, and an educational space where its long and diverse history can be investigated and interpreted.
Pin Mill	Chelmondiston, United Kingdom	IP9 1JD	It's a tiny beautiful riverside hamlet with two working traditional boatyards, a pub and a cafe/studio, that looks like a piece of Cornwall has broken off and drifted round to Suffolk.
Norwich Research Park	Centrum, Colney Lane, Norwich, United Kingdom	NR4 7UH	Amazing science - great location - free parking - good cafe - just needs a proper visitors centre where families can explore the science.
Thetford Warren Lodge	Brandon Road, Thetford, United Kingdom	IP27 0AF	It is an historical site that is located in a beautiful setting. Picturesque but not often visited despite its proximity to the very busy site of High Lodge Visitors' Centre. NB: Picture is from English Heritage website.
Hush House	Bentwaters Parks, Rendlesham, United Kingdom	IP12 2TW	Atmospheric, moody, mysterious. The Hush House has a hidden history which would fascinate people if only they knew about it! NB: Picture is from Bentwaters Parks website
Great Hospital	Bishopgate, Norwich, Norfolk, United Kingdom	NR1 4EL	This place has an alluring and enigmatic history of almshouse, care and philanthropy with some superb yet hidden architectural gems such as the (reputed) smallest Cloisters in Europe and the Eagle Ward, which has a medieval painted roof of eagles (reputedly for Anne of Bohemia) while also housing 'alms beds' in the guise of 'cells' which still contain the belongings of previous inhabitants, such as candlewick bedspreads, 1960's night dresses, ceramics and keepsakes, which are extremely moving. The site hosts more gruesome sites such as the 'Swan Pit' which still survives but is not in use. The Hospital is currently also a sheltered housing village and care home and oddly a conference centre. A really unique and fascinating place.
Great Hospital	Bishopgate, Norwich, United Kingdom	NR1 4EL	A hidden gem, full of history and mystery and still occupied today

The Old Pumping Station	Houghton and Wyton, Cambs, United Kingdom	PE28 2AW	An abandoned building on the low lying fields in the heart of a number of communities that all walk around that area
Derelict glass houses along A1 around Beeston and Sandy	A1, Sandy, United Kingdom		These glass houses are reminder of the market gardening traditions of our area. They have long ago ceased operation and now are being over taken by natural fauna and flora.
Greyfriars Dunwich	Friars Gate, High St, Dunwich, United Kingdom	IP17 3DW	I have a soft spot for this location, I grew up in Covehithe which is near Southwold. We would go on Sunday dog walks to Dunwich and I always loved walking through the Friars Gate past the ruins of Greyfriars and then around Dunwich towards the Heath. I think Dunwich is a great location because this part of the coast attracts lots of visitors in the summer. Either camping, caravanning or in holiday homes. Dunwich has a lot of history, being an early settlement, much of the town is under the sea. Time Team have done archeological digs here along with universities researching the area. It would be great to have sculpture here to remember the heritage of the site.
The sky above Beeston Bump	Beeston Bump, Sheringham, United Kingdom	NR26 8DB	As the highest place in Norfolk, the bump is already a significant location. It has an interesting history as a wartime station, and landmark. But the sky above it is today used by many people as a site for parascending, microlite flying, and biplane acrobatics. One evening we stood amazed watching a guy launching himself off the cliff on a parachute, only to come circling back on the updraught. We talked to him as he flew overhead - an amazing experience!
Museum of Power	Hatfield Rd, Langford, Maldon, United Kingdom	CM9 6QA	This is housed in an "ancient monument" status building with seven acres of land, including a river. It has small gardening team which is struggling to improve a half century of neglect - in itself, an artistic endeavour..
Cambridge Cyrenians Allotment Project	Whitehill Allotments Society, Elfleda Road, Cambridge, Cambridgeshire, United Kingdom	CB5 8LZ	I would like to nominate an amazing community allotment project in central Cambridge. I run the project with a local homeless charity, Cambridge Cyrenians, to provide therapeutic horticulture for those who are sleeping rough or have vulnerable housing in the area. The project is so important and unique for those that come along who say that the benefits they get include - improved physical and mental health, learning opportunities, new friends and team spirit, positive role models, lots of fresh and healthy vegetables.
Old beach huts.	Wellington Bowl, Marine Parade, Great Yarmouth, Norfolk, United Kingdom	NR30 3JF	Boarded up beach huts that have so much potential. Architecturally they speak of their time and have dual aspect, looking out to sea and supporting a canopy that overlooks the former skating rink.
The Canvey Lady	Thorney Bay Camp, Canvey Island, United Kingdom	SS8 0DB	Navigational beacon. No longer standing but immortalised by artist Charles Pears in poster for London Transport. More info and pictures at http://canveyisland.org/page.aspx?id=339
Lowestoft Ness	Lowestoft, United Kingdom	NR32 1XQ	This is, as stated above, the most Easterly Point in the British Isles. It's position at the edge of an Industrial Estate does not encourage passing visitors, and as a "destination" it is sadly lacking in any amenities. All that is at the site is a circle (Euroscope) set into the concrete, giving distances from Lowestoft to various destinations. It needs something to draw people there. There are plans to develop some of the area, which was once known as The Beach Village, into the East of England Park, but the funds are limited. There has been very little progress on this so far, and a project such as this to inspire new art work may well be the spark that kick-starts the whole project. Land's End and John O'Groats both provide a boost to local tourism, which is something that Lowestoft desperately needs. The new Lowestoft Town Council are looking for every bit of support to improve the town on a very limited budget. All support is welcome!
Toppesfield Bridge	Hadleigh, United Kingdom	IP7 6BY	This fine medieval three arch bridge is tucked away from the town. You come across it unexpectedly when walking by the River Brett. One of the finest ancient road bridges in Suffolk which is still in use..
The Grain Silos	Commercial Road, Lowestoft, United Kingdom	NR32 2TD	It has always been an eyesore in a prominent position in the town but it is also a key landmark and important to the local economy and history. I've seen how in Australia these have been turned into enormous works of art that celebrate the local community and history and believe this could be a stunning project to celebrate Lowestoft and it's people.
St Albans Old Police Station	St Albans City, St Albans, United Kingdom	AL1 3TG	Brilliant empty space in high footfall area which needs cheering up with contemporary dance, music and colour inside and out.
Mousehold Heath	Heartsease Lane, Norwich, United Kingdom	NR7 9NT	Mousehold is an unique site in Norwich, rich in history and also a sanctuary to a myriad of Flora and Fauna. It's wooded areas, ponds and heathlands create special moods and "rooms" that would showcase creative talent whilst providing a spacious arena for the art work to be fully appreciated by small or large groups.

How Hill	How Hill Road, Ludham, United Kingdom	NR29 5PG	It is a lovely peaceful little spot with a bit of everything - 2 wind pumps, the river, a mini-museum, a nature trail, a meadow and lots of lovely old trees - tucked away in a forgotten corner of the Broads
St Clements Park	Woodcock Road, Norwich, United Kingdom	NR3 3QD	Norwich's first ecopark. Completely unknown apart from local residents and their children.

Grapes Hill Subway (Pottergate / West Pottergate)	Grapes Hill, Norwich, United Kingdom	NR2	It always has changing artwork and a great echo
Market Gates Public Toilets	Market Gates, Great Yarmouth, Norfolk, United Kingdom	NR30 2BG	The tiling is amazing.
Manningtree/Mistley green area (opposite Mistley Towers)	The Walls, Manningtree, Essex, United Kingdom	CO11 1HB	The largest episode of witch-persecution started in Manningtree in 1645; the first 6 women to be accused came from Manningtree, Mistley and Lawford. There is currently a small green at this cross-roads with a sign-post naming the 3 villages. It would be wonderful to have some sort of commemoration here to the local women victims of the witch-persecution, to counter-balance the current emphasis on the 'Witch-finder' Matthew Hopkins.
Green area on South Street, Manningtree	South Street, Manningtree, United Kingdom	CO11 1HB	19 women were condemned to death by hanging in 1645 at the end of the Essex phase of the East Anglian witch-hunts. Very unusually 4 of them were not hanged in Chelmsford but returned to Manningtree to be executed. An artwork to acknowledge this and to tell the victims' side of the story would be wonderful.
Cavendish Way Roundabout	Cavendish Way, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 0SG	This is a lonely looking place that needs some sculpture
Bishops Rise Roundabout	1 Bishops Rise, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 0SG	A busy but forgotten hub - A chance for Hatfield to shine!!!!
Winter Gardens	Great Yarmouth, United Kingdom	NR30 3JF	It's such a beautiful building, full of memories, history and culture.
Cavendish Way/Bishops Rise roundabout	5 Bishops Rise, Hatfield, Hertfordshire, United Kingdom	AL10 9HA	Useful place to have a landmark and would improve area
Roundabout at junction of cavendish way and bishops rise	5 Bishops Rise, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 9HA	It's a route to work that I notice the space could benefit from some artistic flair!
The Comet Roundabout	Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 9RH	Hatfield Needs to be uplifted its been gloomy for too long.
White Lion Square	Town Centre, Hatfield, United Kingdom	AL10 0JL	The town has been neglected for a long time, it would make a great focus point with the re-generation that is going on.
The view from North Brink across The Fens	North Brink, Wisbech Saint Mary, United Kingdom	PE13 1JR	This spot on the elevated bank of the River Nene gives the finest views of the flat agricultural farmland of the Fens for miles around. Looking out over the fields and orchards between Wisbech St Mary and the Nene, whether they are populated with cattle or large hay bails among the sparse cottages, one could be forgiven for thinking they were looking at The Harvest at Arles, by Vincent Van Gogh; Arles incidentally the town that Wisbech is twinned with.
Colchester's Roman Wall	Colchester, United Kingdom	CO1 2QA	A silent structure with so many hidden stories to tell (and to inspire). A fantastic piece of heritage completely overlooked and taken for granted by those who live in the town (including myself as a Colchesterian, born and bred). However, fantastic tales and observations – personal, contemporary and historical - which come out whenever you talk to anyone who lives here. Stories of houses being built up against the wall (with evidence of plumbing still embedded), to children scrabbling through its drains in olden days. It threads through the town, some parts visible and looked after, other parts hidden and neglected in the old bus station, restaurants and cellars throughout the town centre. Thoughts and themes it inspires include BORDERS, PROTECTION, DIVISION, and my favourite COLONISATION (the Romans who built the wall but also the fauna and flora which has invaded and colonised the wall over the years).

Jaywick Sands Beach Boulders	Jaywick, Clacton-on-Sea CO15, United Kingdom	CO15 2HZ	Ruth Rayner, a PHD student studying memory mapping and psychogeography, took us on a SEASIDE MILE long walk along the beach of Jaywick. One of the most inspiring parts of the talk was when she pointed out the large boulders that protect the beach from erosion. They were shipped in all the way from Norway, and you can see lines and holes on some of them, made by the dynamite rods they use to blast them in the quarry. It made me think about MIGRATION and BELONGING, and what's on the beach that comes from somewhere else. It made me think of the migratory population of Jaywick itself, a community made up of people who come from other parts of the UK, mainly from the East End of London. Just because you don't originally come from a place, does it mean you don't belong? I found this image online © Glyn Baker (Creative Commons Licence)

Thorpe Meadows	Thorpe Meadows, Peterborough, United Kingdom	PE3 6LN	Thorpe Meadows forms part of the stunning 1,725 acre Nene Park in Peterborough. As well as being a great place to walk, cycle, jog or just relax and spend time, Thorpe Meadows is home to a purpose built rowing lake and links Peterborough City Centre to Ferry Meadows. Much of Peterborough's sculpture collection can already be found here including works by Sir Anthony Caro, Lee Grandjean and Miles Davis. The harsh, modern day structures of Peterborough's road network intersect the beauty, tranquillity and open spaces of the existing park land and lake, making it a unique landscape so close to a thriving and busy city. You can find out more about Thorpe Meadows and Nene Park by visiting www.neneparktrust.org.uk
University of Essex	Wivenhoe Park, Colchester, United Kingdom	CO4 3SQ	Because the topic of exhibition is diverse and fascinating
Clacton Pavilion	Pier Gap, Clacton-on-Sea, United Kingdom	CO15 1PS	A once extremely popular place that became derelict, the Clacton Pavilion has recently been brought back to life. Nominated by local historian Norman Jacobs, he gave a fascinating talk in situ about the building and its history. It is now a restaurant, bowling alley and amusements arcade combined, and the owner very generously let us take over half the restaurant for Norman's talk, with free tea and coffee. It was great to see Norman peel away the layers of history, like we were in a time machine travelling back 100 years, standing in the same place and watching it change before us. He presented research and old photographs, telling its story from open band stand on the sea front drawing crowds of hundreds, to a 3000 seated theatre hosting big names. The building fell into decline in the 80s and 90s, but has recently been painstakingly renovated by Clacton entrepreneur Billy Peake, who is passionate about the regeneration of the area. It's not often you get to see the context of a building in such detail, in situ. Really interesting as a landmark to Clacton's rise, fall and rise again.
Oblique Arts	Cambridge, United Kingdom	CB1 3NB	Oblique Arts is an artist led organisation. We enable communities to work with us. We provide unique creative workshops and projects for individuals and groups to inspire and educate. We specialise in working with at risk young people and hard to reach communities. Our projects empower our participants to explore their creative potential through high quality visual arts projects. We use the arts to explore important questions around sustainable futures and to encourage critical thinking and creative action in order to improve lives.
Little Maplesteads lost Roman Road	Little Maplestead, United Kingdom		This location was nominated by James Canton, writer and lecturer at the University of Essex who has recently written a book on the lost landscapes of Britain called 'Ancient Wonderings'. One chapter is dedicated to the search for the lost Roman Road in his home village of Little Maplestead, so he led us on a walking tour to find this ancient relic. It felt rather timeless, a bit surreal and out of time, standing on a hilltop with a large group of people and contemplating a lost road's route through the countryside. The highlight was moving onto to some farm buildings and standing in the middle of quite a busy road. This was where the Roman road would have intersected with the new one - a meeting point between the old and now non-existent, and the contemporary, very real world. Excellent walk and lots to think about. (photo copyright Patricia Fletcher)

Soldiers' Graffiti at the former Cavalry Barracks	Cavalry Road, Colchester, United Kingdom		I would like to nominate the walls of the former Colchester Cavalry Barracks Riding School, now a Doctors surgery based on a brand new housing estate. Hidden and largely unseen on the walls of this listed building can be seen soldiers graffiti scratched into the soft red brick some dated from over 150 years ago. War is often thought of as exciting, action packed and dangerous, but the soldiers graffiti speaks to me of hours of dull waiting, and the anxiety that being a soldier must entail. The exquisite Victorian script of a 4th Hussar, cheeky nicknames, and simple drawings of horseshoes, union jacks and Irish tricolour flags, remain unnoticed by hoards of people using the surgery, yet memorialise the lives of a host of bored ghost soldiers.
Kelvedon Hatch Secret Nuclear Bunker	Kelvedon Hall Lane, Kelvedon Hatch, United Kingdom	CM14 5TL	The worst kept secret in Essex. This huge underground bunker would have housed the Prime Minister and Government officials in the event of a nuclear war, along with 600 military personnel and civil servants. The land was requisitioned from a local farmer and the bunker built in 1952, and was fully operational for 40 years until 1992, after which it was bought back by the same family and opened as a museum. It is an amazing space lots of 60s - 80s kitsch which makes for an alternative ironic day out, yet absolutely frightening at the same time. There's a post-apocalyptic air to this disused military compound, with a lone child's see-saw, decommissioned missiles and even a tank on arrival. As well as being a museum with an awesomely retro self-guided audio tour, the venue is also host to scout sleepovers, a climbing wall, office away days, dummies adorned with Thatcher masks, and overnight paranormal tours. But I think it is important and timely to revisit this defunct space, with the threat of nuclear war becoming more real than ever since the 1980s.

West Earham, Tuckswood, Taverham, Mile Cross, Hingham or Wroxham Library	Wroxham Library, Norwich, United Kingdom	NR12 8RX	It would be great to reacquaint a new audience of nomadic art lovers with public libraries and it would be great to set up a temporary Art Library within any chosen library/ies to showcase library stock to this, hopefully appreciative, audience. It would also be a great chance fantastic to add to the innately serendipitous nature of libraries for our regular audience too. This audience features high proportions of older women, families with young children and those at risk digital exclusion. The libraries I've selected all seem worthy for a variety of reasons. Some are featured because they are in parts of Norfolk in which people are less likely to have access to much in the way of visual or creative arts (West Earham, Tuckswood, Mile Cross) Some are busy libraries with good parking onsite (Taverham, Wroxham) for maximum accessibility. Hingham is our smallest static public library (a former TA training hut) which sits on a small section at the edge of the village green and Wroxham is built on stilts, it also has a large outdoor space to the front of the building visible from the road (see pic).
Trees on University of Essex campus	University of Essex Colchester Campus, Colchester, United Kingdom	CO4 3SQ	Ruth Raymer, a PHD student studying memory mapping and psychogeography, took us on a TREE WALK around the University of Essex Colchester campus. The trees were inspiring. There were stories of how General Rebow, the owner of the Estate in the nineteenth century, smuggled the saplings for the wonderful Cork Oaks into the country from Lisbon in his boot while on tour of duty. As a country house trees were trophies, a status symbol of empire and colonialism, so there are trees from across the world that are over 200 years old. They all have wonderful characters, the Coast Redwood towers up 20 metres (no where near its maximum height of over 100 metres) while the Cedar of Lebanon's long and weighty branches seem like a stage set, dramatically awaiting a cast of actors. There are even Swamp Cypruses hanging over the lake. Magnificent!
University of Essex ICONIC TOWERS	University of Essex Colchester Campus, Colchester, United Kingdom	CO4 3SQ	There were originally plans for 24 of these towers when the University was being built in 1964. Thankfully they stopped at 5. These iconic Brutalist monuments can be seen on the horizon from miles around, loved and hated by locals in equal measure. Brutalist on the outside, they aren't too pretty on the inside either - each floor is one flat, with tiny identikit box bedrooms and basic amenities for 16 students. Some students love the simplicity. In the 60's they were seen as radical and the height of community living, but now some would say they are "outdated high-rise hells". I heard they were used as a lookout towers during the cold war, situated in an ideal spot to see Russian bombers fly over from the North Sea to London - allegedly there are (or used to be) red telephones on the top of the towers, with a direct line to Whitehall to give a five minute warning of imminent nuclear attack.

Wrabness Woodland Burial	Wrabness, United Kingdom	CO11 2TF	When my time comes, I would like to lay to rest in the Woodland of Remembrance in Wrabness, rather than my local graveyard. It seems like a natural return to the earth and ecologically sound, but there is also something very 'East Anglian' about it. We live in this rather remote area of the country, brought up in communities that have radical roots, connected to the land, estuary, mud and sea, so why not do something a little more unusual in death. Feels right - I was born here and am 'of this place'.

The Lowes path	Palgrave, United Kingdom	IP22	"This ancient path is used by walkers, children on bikes, cyclists and shoppers from Palgrave to Diss. It is a wonderful, natural and car free walk in nature and the changing seasons."
Minefield Control Tower, Holiwell point	Burnham-on-Crouch, United Kingdom	CM0 8NG	At an isolated gateway to the East of England, this brutalist concrete relic of the Second World War remains a mute guardian of the Crouch estuary; a rare marker point for intrepid walkers taking the coastal path around the Dengie peninsula. Set against the empty backdrop of the arable flatlands stolen from the sea centuries before, it seems like the discarded helmet of a giant knight. The blank visor now watches out for migrating birds and North Sea swells that might bring coastal inundations. As the climate changes and the waters rise, this abandoned piece of armour poses questions about what we defend and when we retreat.
St. Peter's Church	Church Road, Alresford, Colchester, United Kingdom	CO7 8AS	"The church has been ruined since a fire in 1971 but still carries an essence of the power of place. Maybe this was also a point of worship or celebration in pre-Christian times?"

It looks out over the North Sea and the mouth of the river Stour. Boats are seen coming in and out of harbour. The path is a bit unkempt right next to a forgotten bit of land. A sculpture at the end of the wave breaker covered and uncovered by the tide would be fitting."
Orford Ness	65 Quay St, Orford, Woodbridge IP12 2NU, UK	IP12 2NU	This is a really unmissable, unique landscape. Littered with history from East Anglia's involvement in wartime Britain it's now also a perfect example of "re-wilding" as the hares (and sea) reclaim the landscape. It's isolated, desolate but absolutely inspiring
Underpass in Stevenage	Broadhall Way, Stevenage, Hertfordshire SG1, United Kingdom	SG2 8RH	It's an underpass and cycle track sandwiched between two carriageways. However the track is cut off at both ends rendering the pathway as useless. It no resembles a non space which is quiet interesting when walking through

Church of St. Peter & St. Paul (St Osyth)	Church Square, Saint Osyth, United Kingdom	CO16 8NX	"The village of St Osyth suffered at least two periods of persecution as witchcraft hysteria swept through East Anglia, one being in 1582 and the second being in 1645. Perhaps the most well-known 'witch' was a villager, Ursula Kemp, who was accused by various persons of using familiars to kill and bring sickness to her neighbours. Her examination took place before Brian Darcy, a magistrate and descendant of the Darcys who owned the local Priory. Kemp was eventually found guilty and hanged in Chelmsford in 1582. Later in 1645, despite the Civil War which was ranging at the time, came the second outbreak of witch-hunting, on a much larger scale, incorporating no less than twenty two women from the area. The culmination of four St Osyth witches being hanged at Chelmsford, namely Joyce Boanes, Susan Cock, Rebecca Jones and Margaret Landish. In addition, Rose Hallybread died in jail. Although many of these women confessed to evil doing in the hope of mercy, it was always to no avail. Given that a church has stood on the site of St Peter and St Paul's church in St Osyth for at least 900 years, and that it was undoubtedly where many of the persecuted women went to worship, it seems like an appropriate area to commemorate their lives. Moreover, given that Darcy's epitaph (which is housed within the church) contains no mention of his activities as a witch finder, it would be particularly fitting for a commemorative project to be featured here; especially one which informs the public of this dark period in history, and honours the lives of those who were the victims of ignorance and prejudice. Note: if the church ground is not appropriate, the green outside of the St Osyth priory would also be a suitable environment to house such a project."
