WHAT HAVE ALUMNI THOUGHT OF SYLLABUS?

“In all honesty I expected this year to make me more professional - but it has made me more honest, raw, personal and added an energy to my work that I think my undergrad and working in the art sector had begun to numb out of me.”

“I feel like I have developed as an artist in ways that I could not have envisaged a year ago. I feel much more confident, particularly in terms of breaking media boundaries and working more conceptually. I feel that The Syllabus has acted as a reliable and focused audience for my work and ideas, and has made me more aware and confident about how these connect within a wider field. I generally feel much more connected and supported outside the South West, which is an exciting prospect”

“One of my aims when applying for Syllabus was to increase my network beyond the bubble I had been working in - to meet artists practicing elsewhere in the country and find out what was going on with them. These expectations have been completely exceeded.”

“Looking back at the variety, depth and sheer complexity of each retreat, it has been an immensely challenging and illuminating experience. The generosity of all the partners and contributors has been amazing – the level of commitment and care has been deeply inspiring and motivating”

“I found the Syllabus an excellent test bed for new ideas and work. The constant of my fellow participants and the addition of a new audience at each retreat meant I was confident in taking risks that I would have otherwise reconsidered. This opportunity to fail is enormously useful when you are trying to figure out how far you can push different aspects of your work.”

“I was extremely shy and socially anxious at the beginning of the program and struggled greatly with public presentations of all kinds. Having to repeatedly do these things and being occasionally pushed out of comfort zones was really helpful. I still have to work a lot at these issues, but Syllabus has made me much more confident that I can and that this is worthwhile.”

“It has given me encouragement to continue my practice at a time when it's felt difficult to do so...”

“As someone who did not receive formal art training and therefore interested in alternative art education, Syllabus provided an invaluable experience. It gave me dedicated time to learn amongst artists and opportunity to work with arts institutions. Being able to visit different parts of the UK and meet local artists was beneficial. I will say that I have gained confidence since being on the programme and came out of it with fresh ideas and desire to continue cultivating artists/peer-led support and development.”

HOW MUCH DOES IT COST?

- Access to the Syllabus VII programme is free.
- Each participating artists receive a £1,000 bursary towards travel and accommodation. Sessions are planned well in advance to give time for participants to book this at a low cost.

WHAT IS AN ACCESS BUDGET?

- We have ringfenced a budget to support access costs for the cohort for those who may need it. If you wish to apply for access costs as part of Syllabus VII, please make this clear in your application.
- Examples of support may include: support to access digital sessions, sign language interpretation, support workers and childcare costs.
- This budget is limited, but we can offer support to identify other potential funds where possible.

HOW IS SYLLABUS FUNDED?

- In 2021, Freelands Foundation agreed a landmark £500,000 grant to fund Syllabus as part of its multimillion-pound commitment to support the work of organisations addressing racial inequality in the arts. With this grant, the future of Syllabus is secure for the next ten years.
- Find our more about Freelands Foundation here: <https://freelandsfoundation.co.uk/>
- In addition to the Freelands funding, Syllabus is part of Wysing’s National Portfolio Organisation agreement with Arts Council England. Parts also make a significant in-kind contribution of staff time, space and other resources.

WHAT CHANGES CAN WE EXPECT FROM THE FREELANDS FUNDING?

We look forward to relaunching Syllabus in June 2024 with a newly expanded programme, including:

- bursaries for artists
- access costs for artists
- an online programme
- an annual guest partner
- robust evaluation
- a dedicated Syllabus coordinator.
- Evaluations of the Syllabus tell us that one of its greatest strengths is the peer network forged each year between the participating artists. We expect the programme to remain focused on this peer network and for participating artists to make pro-active contributions to the programme.

CAN I APPLY FOR SUPPORT?

The partners are happy to write letters of support for participants who wish to make applications for professional development or travel grants.

HOW DO I APPLY?

- Applications to the programme are made through an open call from January 2024.
- Applications may be made via video or audio, to support those with dyslexia, rather than written form.
- If you require any further support to make your application, please do not hesitate to get in touch with us at info@wysingartscentre.org or visit one of our drop-in sessions found on the open call form. Natasha Ruwona (Syllabus Coordinator) is also available for a phone call to answer questions or to discuss the application process further.

ARE THERE ANY REQUIREMENTS?

- Applicants need to have been out of education for at least 4 years. This means you will have completed your course in or before 2020. This is because Syllabus has been designed to provide opportunities for artists who have been developing their practice outside of formal structures and who have perhaps been unable to access the kind of critical support and input Syllabus offers. We also welcome applications from people who are self-taught or who have not followed a conventional route into art.
- We will be looking to establish a cohort that represents a diversity of cultural perspectives and of artistic practices and applicants need to be willing to both develop their own work and actively contribute to the development of the curriculum.
- We cannot support international travel so if you are not based in the UK, you would need to be able to commit to attending the sessions at each location throughout the ten months.
- Please visit Wysing's website at www.wysingartscentre.org and click on Opportunities to find out more about how to make an application to Syllabus VII.
